BY FREDERICK LAW OLMSTED.

One volume, I'hno. '25 parcs, with Wood Cuts. Price, *1 50.

The picture-sque and dramatic descriptions of Southern Life and Scenery with which it abounds, will commend it to the perusel of all classes of readers, while its full and detailed accuracy of observation in many matters of great commercial, political and moral interest, establish its permanent value as fulling a ione-fell gap in every library.

It is, in short, a readable and trustworthy account of our own South, such as we have in scores of volumes of Transatlantic States of not half the interest to us; fair, caim, and courteous in its treatment of topics of controversy, though frank and unmistakable in expressing the author's own conclusions.

The Southern Colivator predicts that this book will have "greater influence in the minds of voters" than Uncle Teur's Cabin has had.

The New York Daily Times cays of it: "This work will be year the best yet published on the subject."

The New Orleans Delta observes of the author: "Prejudiced as his opinions were, he was not a willfully dishonest man or an unfair writer. We would welcome a few more men of his callber among us—prejudiced, but manly and honts."

Putam's Menthly: "His calm, clear and unprejudiced statement will be read with deep interest by North and South slike, As a book of travel merely, it is highly fascinating by its aketches of manners, &c.; and as a book of principles it is no less valuable."

R O S E C L A R K,
A few weeks only have elapsed since the publication of this bock, and yet our sales already exceed 25,000 copies. No work of fiction published in America during the last year has attained such success. Does not this prove the power and popularity of Fanny Fern?
Of the many nanecarchick.

incorable to the age that produced it—and we have yet to see the work of fiction by an American woman worthy to stand beside it."

"The vigorous pen of Fanny Fern has already made its mark in the world of literature; and, although a little tipped with verom in the production of 'Rath Hall,' in the work before us we find its true mission, the recording of deeds of mercy and triumph of love. The disguise in which the lady came before the public, the picturing of the darker scenes of her own, and the discordant jars of he: own family, we are glad to see is cast saide, and the heart—the pure, warm, earnest heart of a genuine woman—bursts forth in irresistible strains of heavenly melody. Rose Clark will live when Ruth Hall is forgotten, in fresh verdure; for its purity of tose, elegance of diction, originality of thought, vigor of style, must preserve it as one of the best stories of our time, and worthy perusal again and again."

"It has every element of earnestness, power and satire, that she has ever evinced. A more decided picture is seiom to be seen. It portrays the miseries and oppressions of a young charlyst orphan, so as to bring out in trightful relief the world's uncharitableness, and the deformity of hypocrisy and fashion. It is in tense in feeling, severely beautiful in style, with not a waste word or an overdrawn line, and pregnant with a wise lesson."

"The neturity of Fanny Fern is by no means of a temporary or evenescent character. It is founded on a firm and durable hasis, and will exist as long as the style of Literature which gave it birth le popular in this country. Fanny has talente of a rare order; some of her stray waits, set affont from all merce or a credit when her new paper contributions, were really exquisite—they must have been no, else they would never have been received with such a furor of apprehation from all levers of the beautiful interature. Her' Ruth Hall, although, from its personal character. It made for its autherese many onemies, was still a supendous work in its way. But the here, it made for its authoress many enemies, was still sendous work in its way. But her' Rose Clark' exceeds il her previous works. It is to them the master-piece of mished artist, as compared with the charcoal sketches of chool-buy amateur,"

"Since Dana's "Two Years Before the Masi," we do not call to mind any more admirable description of a sallor's life. Herman Meiville's manifical narratives are more highly spiced with piquant descriptive scenes, it is true; but for quiet, absorbing and—se far as a landsman can judge—faithful accounts of a life on shipboard, commend us to this anonymous another.

HORACE GREELEY:

EDITOR OF THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

By James Perfon. Wich Potriais. Time, pp. 462. Price $1.25.

It is agreed by friends and foes of Mr. Greeley that no more ably, entertainfully and instructively written biography has ever made its appearance in America. Every one who has any desire for a familiar acquaintance with the famous New-York Editor, should read Mr. Parton's book, and he will know Mr. Greeley as well as though he had been "brought up in the same town."

TO BRICK-MAKERS and BRICK-MASONS.—
Proposals will be received at my office, in the town of Newbern, until the 15th day of February next, for making and burning one million and a haif of good, hard brick, such as will be approved of by the Chief Engineer of the Atlantic and North Carolina Rallroad Company, for erecting Machine-Shop, Depost Building and Warehouse at Newbern, for said Company. The clay and wood, if preferred, will be furnished at the yard, which will be within two or three hundred yards of the place the buildings are to be erected on. The clay is also being dug. The yard, or a place for making it, will be furnished free of cost, which will require very little expense to prepare.

Or, if preferred, persons who propose to make the brick may also propose to put up the masonry of the buildings at so much per thousend, allowing, as they may suggest, a certain number of brick to the cubic foot, and they furnish everything complete; all openings to be deducted.

The buildings are in a very convenient position for the contractor, lying immediately adjoining the town, and one of thou immediately on the river and the others within two or three hundred yards. No doubt that contracts can also be made with other parties for similar work, with a reliable contractor.

If preferred, security will be given and taken for the fitthful carrying out of the said contract.

Persons preposing can either propose or not to take a portion of the actock of said Company in payment.

The plans of the buildings can be seen at any time on application at my office.

Reguiar packats run between Newbern and New-York and ether Northern ports, which will enable contractors to land machinery or any materials at very short notice directly to the yard.

As regards the health of the place, few towns, Northern er
